The Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph originated in France, in the town of Puy, in Velay, where Bishop Henry de Maupas established it at the suggestion of Father John Peter Médaille, a celebrated missionary of the Society of Jesus. This zealous missionary, having found, in the course of his missionary labors, several young women who desired to retire from the world, and who manifested, at the same time, strong dispositions for works of piety, and especially for such works as would benefit their fellow-beings, formed the project of establishing a con-

On the 15th of October, 1650, the feast of St. Teresa, he [The Bishop of Puy] addressed them a pathetic discourse, animating them to the most pure love of God and to a most perfect love towards their neighbor. He placed them under the patronage of St. Joseph, and ordered that they should be called the Congregation of the Sisters of St. (Joseph.)

Joseph. He gave them rules for their guidance, and prescribed for them a form of dress; finally he confirmed the establishment of the same Congregation and the prescribed rules by letters of the 10th of March, 1651, and during his life manifested great zeal for the success of the Congregation, many establishments of which he created in his own diocese. ...

In the year 1836, six Sisters of the Congregation arrived in St. Louis, Missouri, under the auspices of Bishop Joseph Rosati. ...

Four Sisters of this Order were first brought to Toronto from Philadelphia in the year 1851 by Bishop de Charbonnel, for the purpose of taking charge of a small orphan asylum which he had established, and which afterwards developed into the present House of Providence. On the opening of the Separate Schools in 1852, the Sisters were employed as teachers, and a couple of years afterwards they opened their first boarding-school for young ladies in St. Paul's Parish. The number of pupils increased so rapidly that it was deemed necessary to erect a more commodious building, and to open a convent on a larger and more extensive scale. A piece of ground was kindly donated to the Order for this purpose by the Hon. John Elmsley, on which was built the large and imposing structure now known as the St. Joseph's Convent. ...

THE SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH

The Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph was established in Puy, Velay, France, by Bishop Henry de Maupas at the suggestion of Father John Peter Médaille. Name given 1650; establishment confirmed and rules prescribed 1651.

In 1836 six Sisters emigrated to Missouri under auspices of Bishop Rosati, and in 1851 four were brought to Toronto by Bishop de Charbonnel to take charge of an orphan asylum (~~now the House of Providence~~) he had established on Nelson St. (present Jarvis St.) In 1857 The House of Providence, a home for the aged was opened on Power St.

In 1852 Sisters ~~began teaching in~~ were given charge of the Separate Schools (founded that year), and later opened a boarding school in St. Paul's parish. ~~In 1857 The House of Providence~~ To accommodate the ever-increasing number of pupils, (~~Hon. John Elmsley donated land on which the present~~) The convent (St. Albans street) ~~now stands.~~ on was built in 1863 on land donated by the Hon. John Elmsley.

TORONTO, Ont.

Dear Mother Leocrita:

FROM MACDONELL TO McGUIGAN, the forthcoming volume of my history of County Peel is nearing completion.

My book will contain an appendix, with brief biographical notes, of Priests, Nuns and Christian Brothers in any way connected with Peel. The Sisters of Loretto have given me their best co-operation and help.

So that my records will be complete, would you kindly check over the enclosed biographical notes, adding what information is lacking?

Were your parents born in Caledon township?
My father was born Caledon Township - My mother Loretto. Ont.
Your kind assistance will be much appreciated.

Yours very sincerely,

MHM.

THE SISTERS OF SERVICE

The religious community of the Sisters of Service was founded in 1922, in Toronto, for missionary work, particularly in the ~~outlying~~ more remote districts of Western Canada. As nurses, teachers, Catechists and Social Workers, the Sisters devote their lives to the spiritual and temporal welfare of ~~the~~ New-Canadians. They are also at the landing docks of our ports to welcome ~~the~~ incoming immigrants. The Mother House and Novitiate are in Toronto, with fifteen mission houses stretching from Coast to Coast.
